ONE REASONABLE MILLIONAIRE.

It is very refreshing in this day and age to have at least one multimillionaire to come forward with good words for President Roosevelt and his policies. Andrew Carnegie, at the Hague Peace Conference, declared that President Roosevelt's rigorous dealing with corporations counted very little for the recent decline in stock values; that the president is a truly conservative man who remedies abuses; that he is the best friend of the railroads and far from lowering the value of their bonds and shares, will enhance their value and give to investors an element of security hitherto lacking.

Andrew Carnegie is one millionaire in a thousand. His millions have not destroyed his common sense. They do not cause him, in a lust to obtain more money, to shout for a return to the "safe and sane" kind of a candidate. On the contrary, with the shrewdness and foresight which have helped him gain his millions, Mr. Carnegie sees that President Roosevelt's attitude towards offending corporations and railroads is the surest way to preserve the rights of private property. By forcing them to higher standards of business ethics, the president causes the corporations to be more careful of the rights of others, and in this way is doing the corporations a real favor. For when the people find the corporations are being mindful of their rights they will be more mindful and broad to the rights of the corporations.

And now the glorious, insane old Fourth is approaching with its long list of fatalities and accidents.

FORUM OF THE PEOPLE OPEN TO ALL.

Claims It Is an Outrage.

Editor Palladium:—I think I am drawing it mildly when I say that to subject property owners of South Twelfth street to the needless and senseless expense of taking up a good brick sidewalk to make room for one of cement, is nothing short of an outrage. It is still in the memory of said property owners that not long ago they were ordered to take up said sidewalk and lay it, which they did at considerable expense. Very recently they were treated to the expense of cement curb and gutter, all of which seems to make room for the marvelous executive ability for municipal improvement which sneezes upon some of the city officials upon being elevated to a position where they can exercise a "little brief authority." This way of managing our municipal affairs has brought the city debt up to the legal limit, so something must be done. A plan is said to be already on foot to circumvent the law meant to guard against such action. The tax rate has made the longest leap it has made at one time in twenty years, and it is likely to make another soon if the present policy is continued.

No stronger evidence is needed of the disastrous effect of such policy than the recent failure of the board of works for the second time to float bonds for a needed improvement.

Such a condition as this is a serious menace to the prosperity and growth of the city. Capital will be driven out and building improvements remain at a comparative stand still.

The Magazines.

When the editors of Success Magazine served up in their July issue a most interesting and illuminating article on the free and easy ways of the President, they could find no more appropriate nor timely title than "Roosevelt—Democrat." Mr. Roosevelt has been for some time referred to as an ideal Democrat in politics, and this article, a series of incidents prepared by Robert Lee Dunn, who, as a campaign photographer, accompanied Mr. Roosevelt on many of his trips, shows the real unaffected democratic spirit that has made him the most popular man that ever occupied the White House.

The various efforts that have been made from time to time, by noted swimmers, to swim the English Channel, are touched upon by W. G. Fitz-Gerald in his article, "An Eighteen Hour Swim," which describes chiefly the attempt made last year by Burgess, the Englishman, who failed only after having swum forty-two miles, in the face of great obstacles.

"The Moonshiners," by H. S. Cooper, the first chapters of which appear this month, is a romance of the Tennessie mountaineers that depicts with graphic fidelity conditions of life in the "still" country, and the terror and devastation caused by a revenue raid. Montague Glass contributes an account of his experiences with that presiding genius of the business world, the office boy.

"The Wireless Telegraph Bubble," by Frank Fayant, with its dramatic exposure of the operations of the men who have made this great discovery a byword of reproach, is concluded in this issue. Henry Beach Needham's history of baseball is continued with an interesting account of some of the trick plays that have of late years been developed in baseball science. "A Quart of Turquoises," by Henry Milner Rideout; "The Perambulating House," by Elliott Flower, and "Robert Gallahue Todd," by Wilbur Nesbit, are fiction features for summer reading. "Ghosts of the Ditch" is a bit of Klingonesque verse on the woes of Panama Canal workers, by Alfred Damon Runyon. There is other verse by Edna S. Valentine, Roy Farrell Greene and Nixon Waterman.

The Servant Problem in Cuba.

The Cuban matron has little to say in the management of her own household, as the family literally board with their cook, who has sole control of the cuisine. When a cook is engaged, she is paid so much per month—$10, $15 or $20, as the case may be—for her work. She at once inquires how much is allowed for the marketing, which she is to do each morning. On being told, she figures out how much she can save from the amount, and if the graft amount to say 15 or 20 cents per day, she is likely to accept the position. She rarely sleeps at the house and usually has a family of her own who are fed from the larder of her employer. Early breakfast is light—fruit, rolls and coffee—and at noon there is a meal known as late breakfast, which resembles the American luncheon. When this is finished, the cook spends a few hours at her home and returns at 5 o'clock in time to prepare dinner. A half grown girl is employed to wait on the table, answer the doorbell, etc. In some families male cooks are employed. If the meals do not suit the master of the house, he adds more money to the marketing allowance.—Mrs. C. R. Miller in Leslie's Weekly.

WRITE INTERESTING LETTERS FROM NOME

Mrs. Jennie Liebhardt and Daughter Now in That Far Away Country.

MANY UNUSUAL THINGS.

MISS LIEBHARDT HAS A SPLENDID POSITION IN THE BEST BANK THAT IS CONDUCTED AT HOME.

Milton, Ind., June 29.—Mrs. Jennie Liebhardt and daughter Miss Ina, write interesting letters from Nome, Alaska, to their Milton friends. They sailed from Seattle June first on the "Ohio," which was originally a government transport. There were 704 persons on board including the crew. The sea was smooth most of the way and the trip much enjoyed. After some days out they came to the ice fields which formed a great picture. Nome was reached on June 10th. The town is a small place on the Behring Sea, with mountains sloping away. There are no trees or shrubbery there and the streets and yards are of tundra, a black mold, which was beginning to thaw. Dogs were everywhere as it was their season for rest, the sledding months having passed. The cabins are shacks, which rent for $15 per month unfurnished, while the furnished ones bring $30 to $50.

For several months there will be no darkness there, the sun setting only for a couple of hours during which there is a twilight which permits one to read a paper anywhere. At 10:30 p. m. it is light as day. Rooms rent for $3 per day and good board is $5 a day. While expenses are high the wages are in proportion. Cooks get $150 per month and "found." Nurses get $10 per day. They have met some very pleasant people and expect to enjoy the months which they will spend in the far north. Miss Ina has a fine position in the best bank in Nome.

We don't care if you are skeptical; we don't care if you have no confidence. It makes no difference to us. Hoilster's Rocky Mountain Tea will do the work or no pay—that's fair. 35 cents. A. G. Luken & Co.

News of the T. P. A.

The eighteenth annual convention of the Travelers' Protective Association is over. The doings and misdoings of that august body of T. P. A. intelligence, consisting of 439 select members from the 26,000 total membership, has gone into history.

In point of numbers the convention was the largest ever held. The pleasant trip for the delegates going to Norfolk, coupled with the fact that the organization at the present time has the largest membership in its history, was the reason, no doubt of the large convention.

Indiana was on the floor with 66 delegates and every one of the 66 wanted T. Schuyler Logan of Ellettsville, elected national secretary and treasurer. They came mighty near electing him. No doubt the harmonious condition of the National Association and the prosperity it has enjoyed in the last two years caused several of the delegates to feel that a change for national secretary and treasurer was not necessary. When they voted was found that Mr. La Beauce was only elected by twelve and a half votes. When Indiana could not secure the national secretary and treasurer it did not feel that it wanted anything else, and as a consequence Indiana, the largest division, with the largest delegation, came home without securing any representation in the national councils in any form next year.

The election of the national president was a surprise but it seems that the convention did not want Mr. Ochs of Louisiana, nor Mr. McKenzie of Colorado, and so demonstrated by casting its votes for the two "dark horses."

Neither the out-going president, Mr. Howe, nor ex-President Johnson had been candidates for the national presidency, but at the last hour their names were sprung and the contest between the two was very exciting. Mr. Johnson being elected by a small majority.

Considerable excitement was occasioned on Thursday night by the national president trying to adjourn the convention after a division had been called for. It seemed that there was considerable politics in the convention this year, there being two distinct factions, one of which wanted the convention adjourned and the other did not. Through some misunderstanding on Mr. Howe's part, he refused to recognize the call for a division and it came very near causing a riot. However, the Rev. D. Wilson, national chaplain, after a few minutes' effort succeeded in quieting "the boys," after which the division was taken, resulting in the majority voting against adjournment. The convention then kept in continuous session until five o'clock Friday morning, electing the national president, national secretary and treasurer and other national officers in the meantime.

Milwaukee was chosen as the next place of meeting. Taking it all in all, the convention was a success and the delegates all report a pleasant and profitable trip. The delegates from Post C, who were Marcus Hasty, Mr. and Mrs. William Kramer, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Starr, left Norfolk Friday evening via steamer for New York city, and after spending a day or so in New York city, went to Philadelphia and Washington on their return home, making a pleasant trip.

We do not believe that our friend, "Mr. McKenzie" of Colorado, will try to be elected national President in any future national convention. We certainly think that Mr. McKenzie has been turned down a sufficient number of times to satisfy any one.

James Lewis and wife, Marion Shreeve and family, Harry Lincoln and family will leave Monday for Sand Lake to be gone two weeks, fishing and otherwise enjoying themselves. Any one wanting fish from the crowd will please leave his order early as the demand will no doubt be great.

John B. Hegger hies himself away to Spiceland after the Fourth to recuperate for two or three weeks. Spiceland citizens no doubt will take to the tall timbers when they hear that John is coming. They really do say that John kicks the top branches of the trees when he gets to Spiceland.

Saturday night was the regular meeting night, but no business of special importance was transacted; only the usual routine.

Please do not forget to pay your T. P. A. dues. Remember that Monday you are delinquent, and if you should get hurt you wouldn't get a cent. Send your check at once to W. D. Chambers, Terre Haute, Ind., if you have not already done so.

Our worthy president advises us that the ladies' feature is to be continued, and nothing preventing a re-occurrence of last month's pleasant entertainment will take place in July. Particulars regarding this will be announced later.

Next Saturday night there will be a regular session of the board of directors, and it is desired that every member be present, as there are some matters to come up that are of interest to the post. Do not fail to be in attendance. W. H. Q.

ATTACK ON WINDOW TO PROTECT MATE

Robin at Whitewater Mistakes His Reflection for a Rival Bird.

NEST IS NEAR A WINDOW.

FAITHFUL MALE KEEPS UP HIS ATTACK WITH PERSISTENCY AND THE OUTCOME IS WATCHED WITH INTEREST.

Whitewater, Ind., June 29.—Something a little out of the ordinary among the bird kind has been noticed in the rear of the Pyle Mercantile Co.'s store. A pair of robins have built a nest near a window and the male recently discovered that in a certain position there was another robin (his reflection) and he at once began striking the glass with all his might. This he has kept up for hours at a time until rested. He then returns to the attack. His idea of protecting his mate and the nest, is very highly developed, but his knowledge of natural phenomena is limited.

The result of his persistent attacks is watched with much interest.
